All the fun of the farm on the Nintendo 3DS™: “My Life on a Farm 3D”

The new simulation from TREVA Entertainment in the Nintendo eShop for the Nintendo 3DS is all about getting down to work on a proper farm: the players harvest fruit and vegetables, produce and sell their own food products and also look after lots of adorable farm animals.

Hamburg, 11th December 2014 – TREVA Entertainment GmbH is publishing a 3D farm simulation for the Nintendo 3DS. In “My Life on a Farm 3D” players will get to know all about life in the countryside.

And there is plenty to do: on the big farm there are any number of animals that have to be taken care of. There is a host of mini-games in which the young farmers can milk cows, shear sheep, carry out forestry work with the donkey, harvest honey, gather eggs from the hen house, go fishing and even go searching for truffles with the pig! Of course along with that comes the feeding, cleaning up and the treatment of sick animals – all of the daily tasks that are part and parcel of farm life. The farm’s stalls can be progressively expanded in order to be able to accommodate more livestock.

To till the fields, players drive a tractor which is steered using the Nintendo 3DS tilt and motion control. There are also fruit and vegetables to be harvested.

The young farmers have a farm shop to run where they can sell all kinds of home-made goods. Players have access to over 100 recipes for bread, cheese, cakes and much more to produce stock for the shop.

“My Life on a Farm 3D” supports the Nintendo 3DS Circle Pad control. The game also uses further Nintendo 3DS features: Play Coins can be collected and exchanged for game currency, while the Nintendo 3DS camera can be used for players to take a real 3D picture of themselves to then use in the game.
